GEO 298 – Geographic Field Study, South Africa

December 27 – January 13

This course provides students with a field-based geographical perspective of contemporary land use and sustainable development issues in South Africa's Western Cape Province. Students will take part in field lectures, seminar-style discussions, community based service learning activities, as well as research driven group projects. The course will be taught as a field experience in South Africa. Prerequisite(s): Instructor approval. Special Conditions: Travel arrangements through Sponsored Programs and Research. C. Patrick Heidkamp.
