

GeoGebra Conference

The GeoGebra Institute of Southern Connecticut invites you to participate in its first Annual Conference.

November 5, 2013

Southern Connecticut State University

The conference will consist of several sessions of varying content and level.

Some sessions will be of introductory level; others will be dedicated to experts.

Content will be suited to classroom teachers, university faculty, and others who may have an interest in GeoGebra.

CALL FOR PRESENTATIONS

Presentations are open to all GeoGebra users who would like to share their experiences with their colleagues. We are particularly interested in presentations that bring together K-16 students, classroom teachers and/or university faculty around the effective use of GeoGebra.

Presentations should be 20 minutes long, followed by a five minute discussion period.

The deadline for presentation proposals is October 7, 2013.

•
Register online to present or attend by October 30, 2013 at
