

The Center for Coastal and Marine Studies

Announces

The Fifth Annual Long Island Sound Seminar Series

Wednesday, March 26th, 1:00-2:00 pm, Jennings Hall 127

Tessa Getchis

Aquaculture Extension Educator, CT Sea Grant and Cooperative Extension,
UCONN, Groton, CT

Aquaculture and Shellfisheries Management in Connecticut: Past, Present and Future

Wednesday, April 9th, 1:00-2:00 pm, Jennings Hall 127

Elizabeth Pillsbury

Ph.D. Candidate, U.S. and Environmental History, Columbia University,
New York, NY

Filthy Waters, Typhoid Fevers and Oyster Planters: Shellfish Battles in New York and Connecticut, 1880-1925

Wednesday, April 23rd, 1:00-2:00 pm, Jennings Hall 127

Kamazima M.M. Lwiza

Associate Professor, Marine Sciences Research Center, SUNY at Stony Brook, Stony Brook, NY

Characteristics of Bottom Dissolved Oxygen in Long Island Sound: Physics vs. Biology

Wednesday, May 7th, 1:00-2:00 pm, Jennings Hall 127

Marta Gomez-Chiarri

Associate Professor, Department of Fisheries, Animal and Veterinary Sciences
University of Rhode Island, Kingstown, RI

From Genes to Waders: Managing Oyster Diseases in Rhode Island

The Fifth Annual Long Island Sound Seminar Series is sponsored by the Center for Coastal and Marine Studies and is supported by an SCSU Faculty Development Grant.

Questions: call James Tait (x25838), Vince Breslin (x26602), or Dwight Smith (x26222)

Refreshments Will Be Served